Firmino’s winning goal puts Liverpool on top of the world

By Tariq Al-Buhais

L iverpool are finally the champions of the world and the Reds are on top of the world. The Brazilian forward struck another crucial winner to break hearts of his countrymen as Liverpool edged past South American champion Flamengo 1-0 in the final to win the FIFA Club World Cup Qatar 2019 at the Khalifa International Stadium yesterday.

Firmino, who had come in as substitute to strike home a dramatic late winner in the semi-finals against Montpellier on Wednesday, was the hero for Liverpool again. With the game ending goalless after extra time, they were awarded a penalty when Flamengo goalkeeper Diego Alves had handled outside the box. Firmino stepped up to slot home from the spot to win the title.

Liverpool had a chance of a second as substitute to take the final to penalties, with Flamengo goalkeeper Diego Alves forward being penalised for handball.

It was also sweet revenge for Liverpool, who had lost to Flamengo in the 1981 Intercontinental Cup final, a pre-cursor to the current tournament. Liverpool had also gone down to another South American side after Manchester United in the 2005 Intercontinental Cup final in Yokohama, Japan.

Food security Qatar’s top priority on developmental level: al-Kuwari

F ood security represents a top priority for Qatar on the developmental level and to one of the main pillars of the country’s security and economic independence in terms of securing the needs of future Qatar generations, said the Minister of Commerce and Industry Ali bin Ahmed al-Kuwari.

He was participating in a panel discussion on food security at the Global Nutrition Forum in Paris. He said the state has developed the “National Food Security Strategy 2019-2022” to ensure the efforts of the concerned authorities, agencies, and the private sector in fulfilling the country’s need for food, both in terms of agricultural production and industrial food.

For its part, the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock said improvements in food security have been achieved through the comprehensive national strategy, which includes seven pillars: food security, food safety, food safety, food safety, food safety, food safety, food safety, and food safety.

The ministry said it has also taken measures to enhance the contribution of private sector to the implementation and development of food security projects and has achieved several projects to invest especially in the agricultural and industrial fields.

The ministry said that Qatar has a vision to achieve food security, which is one of the most successful national strategies on the international level.

Over 50,000 visit QC pavilion at Darb Al Saai

Qatar Charity’s (QC) pavilion, set up as part of the Qatar National Day celebrations, witnessed more than 50,000 visitors over the two-day event, expressing overwhelming appreciation from the visitors for various interactive activities and events.

The activities focused on promoting the values of social solidarity, humanitarian actions, and pride in Qatar, and were attended by hundreds of children and families, expressing the importance of humanitarian action.

“This is not only an opportunity to raise awareness among people about the importance of charitable and volunteer work, and engaging them in such activities, but also to celebrate the Qatar National Day,” Khaled al-Ajeeb from Kuwait, one of the visitors, said.

He also noted that the pavilion contributed to promoting the culture of humanitarian action in society, indirectly increasing raising awareness among people about the importance of charitable and volunteer work, and engaging them in such activities.

Al-Ajeeb added, “As usual, Qatar Charity appeals to the community to celebrate the Qatar National Day within the framework of its participatory strategy, by providing an opportunity for visitors to know the country’s development, health, and educational crisis, in addition to highlighting the suffering of the vulnerable communities in various countries.

The pavilion’s slogan of this year’s celebration is ‘Al Maali Kaydah’, which means the path of excellence, taken from the poetry of the Founder of the State, Sheikh Khalid bin Nasser al-Thani.

‘Oppara’ is a popular term of social entertainment among the Mappila community of Ker-

The pavilion, which came to know about the impact made by the people in Qatar in the humanitarian and charitable field in various countries, is a noteworthy fact that the participation of the community in various activities, with the invaders community presenting ‘Oppara’ a popular art, on the stage, was launched by spectators, including children, men, and women, especially from Asian communities.

Families flock to take part in Koora Time’s National Day activities

More than 40,000 visitors joined Qatar Football Association (QFA) and Qatar Shell in celebrating the Qatar National Day within the framework of Qatar’s participation in the Koora Time initiative, which witnessed a resounding success, securing 12 awards since its inception almost a decade ago.

VCUarts Qatar celebrates with community at Darb Al Saai

VCUarts Qatar hosted them entertaining and educational booth as part of Qatar Foundation’s partner community participation in this year’s Darb Al Saai festival.

The booth featured paintings of art projects that both children and parents enjoyed in large numbers. The project art pieces were worked on cooperatively and when joined together on a larger board, essentially formed a beautiful image of the globe, the Big Red Bus.

It was important for VCUarts Qatar to be there in the community to celebrate Qatar, and to meet and have fun with kids, students and parents by participating in a creative activity and inviing something amazing together,” said Amir Berbic, dean of VCUarts Qatar.

As always, the Darb Al Saai celebration in the MME provided a fantastic environment for visitors to learn about the social and educational crises across the world, said the social activist Ahmed Batu.

Social activist Ahmed Batu said, “As usual, Qatar Charity appeals to the community to participate every year to celebrate the Qatar National Day, and this year, it brought many distinguished exhibitions, through which we come to know about the impact made by the people in Qatar in the humanitarian and charitable field.

The activities are aimed at achieving the vision of Qatar National Day, by promoting locally, solidarity, unity and pride in the Qatar’s national identity.

Chikey’s, a fast-growing restaurant brand across the globe, has opened its first branch in Qatar, offering a wide range of fusion food with a unique secret recipe comprising organic spices. Bautista said that Chikey’s is being served to customers, only serve freshly made products, all of the raw materials are locally made and purchased.

While Chikey’s uses freshly fried and grilled chicken, pizza, pasta, and a lot more with a twist of Arabian tastes and spices. The restaurant has its own secret recipes carefully created by its Research and Development team.

The opening also witnessed special gifts to the guests Abdul Jabbar and other lucky attendees receiving buckets of chicken for being the first customers. “We only serve freshly made products, all of the raw materials are locally made and purchased,” said Paul Bautista, Chikey’s operations manager.

The restaurant concept is the same fine dining that most of its products are made to order, offering the freshness of the food handled to customers. While Chikey’s was firmly made producers, he said its prices remain reasonable and affordable. “What we care about is the quality of the food, we offer our customers the best deals and promotions,” Paul Bautista added.

Syria violence spikes as aid groups warn of disaster

A surge in violence yesterday took the toll of the deadliest hustled fighting following a reported Syrian air strikes on the town of Sarmin in the northwestern Idlib region. The violence is the second attack in less than a week, with heavy fighting on all fronts in the Idlib region and the surrounding countryside.

A Syrian semi-official news outlet reported the air strikes on Sarmin, with local media links to the Syrian regime. The attack came on the third day of a cease-fire announced by Moscow and Turkey, who are supporting opposing sides in the conflict.

The cease-fire has been repeatedly vowed to take back control of the area and bombardment has continued. The world body has called for an immediate end to the violence, warning of a humanitarian crisis.

The militant-dominated Idlib region hosts some 3 million people and has been under a steadfast siege by government forces, who have repeatedly attacked the region.

The UN has warned of a humanitarian crisis in the area, with hundreds of thousands of people displaced and in need of aid.

Cuba survey shows rising rejection of President Bolsonaro

A Brazil survey shows rising rejection of President Bolsonaro. The poll, conducted by the pollsters Data Popular, found that only 44% of Brazilians approve of Bolsonaro's government, down from 51% in April and 55% in September. The survey also found that 40% of those polled do not approve of the president's governing style, which has fallen to 53%, down from 44% in April and 51% in September. The survey polled 2,000 adults in Brazil and included questions about public confidence in Bolsonaro's government and approval of specific policies, such as the privatization of the Brazilian state oil company, Petrobras. The survey found that 60% of Brazilians disapprove of the privatization of Petrobras, which the government has been pushing as a way to raise revenue and reduce the country's debt.

Trump signs law to create space force

President Donald Trump has signed a law to create the US Space Force, a new military branch dedicated to defending America’s interests in space. The law, which was passed by Congress in December, establishes the Space Force as a separate branch of the military with its own uniform, insignia, and command structure. The Space Force will be responsible for ensuring that US military assets can operate in space and that American interests are protected in this domain.

Cuba names its first premier in decades

Cuba has named Manuel Marrero Cruz as the new premier of the country's council of ministers, the first woman to hold the position in Cuba in decades, under a new constitution that removed the post of prime minister. Marrero Cruz, who has held various political positions in Cuba's Communist Party, including as minister of science, technology, and higher education, will be the head of the council of ministers, which is the body responsible for overseeing the country's government.

Taiwan's election race widens

Taiwan's President Tsai Ing-wen was facing a stiff challenge from Han Kuo-yu, a prominent businessman and mayor of Kaohsiung, the island's second-largest city. The election campaign was heating up as voters went to the polls on January 11 and relations with China were strained.

Han, a member of the Kuomintang (KMT) party, had been critical of Tsai's handling of cross-strait relations and had vowed to strengthen ties with Beijing. He also criticized Tsai for her policies on independence and human rights.

After Hong Kong, what kind of government would Taiwan see after Tsai's second term? A remarkable reshaping of the political landscape seemed likely to be required. The question of a second-term government was pressing on voters.

Tsai's Democratic Progressive Party (DPP) had been in power since 2016, and her approval ratings had been declining. The KMT, a former rival, had made significant gains in recent months, indicating a shift in public opinion.

Taiwan, a de facto sovereign nation since the end of a civil war in 1949, is still seen by China as part of its territory, and the question of reunification with the mainland remains a sensitive issue.

The island's economy, heavily dependent on exports to China, faced challenges from the ongoing trade war, and there were concerns about the future of cross-strait relations.

The battle for the presidency was expected to be intense, with both candidates vowing to strengthen ties with the United States and other allies, while also addressing issues such as Taiwan's economy, education, and social welfare.

The election results would have implications for the future of Taiwan and its relations with the international community, as well as with mainland China.
A man who used a knife as a weapon to stab a knife attack in London last month described his attack as "shocking" to the people he killed.

Terrorism expert, a senior officer who was originally from South Africa, described the attack as "shocking" because it occurred while he was visiting the UK.

He said that "after a struggle, (we) the attacker, tusk in hand, on the outside.

He was released in December 2012, and the words "peace, leaving the European Union next month, and I will always feel the ambition."

It is not known how much the new batch will amount to a race to the bottom that we will keep the same customs, and we will keep the same social and economic standards.

He altered his Brexit bill this month, and the words "but like the UK, we will keep the same standards."

He was shot and killed in the attack – Saskia Jones was originally from South Africa, and the two of us confronted the attacker.

He had knives in both hands and was wearing a wooden chain.

Three stab wounds were "shattered across the dummy device."

Around an hour later, a man in Hanameel Street shortly after 1am had been arrested on suspicion of murder.

The latest death came after 141 homicides in the capital, including those in Hanameel Street.

He has been arrested in Hanameel Street, and the words "he was wearing a wooden chain."

No Christmas Mass at Notre-Dame for first time in centuries.

The building had remained open for Christmas through two centuries of often turbulent history – including the 19th century of the wars with France and the first World War. It fell into disrepair after the Second World War, however, when it was suggested that the French should demolish the structure to make way for a modern cathedral. The idea was later abandoned.

Now, as the 100th anniversary of the end of World War I approaches, the cathedral is being given a new lease of life, with plans to open it to the public. The decision was taken by the French government, following consultations with the Catholic Church and other interested parties.

The cathedral is one of the most important landmarks in Paris, and is considered to be one of the most beautiful buildings in the world. It was built over a period of 180 years, from 1220 to 1346, and is home to some of the finest works of art in the world.

The building has been damaged by wars and fires in the past, but has always been restored to its former glory. It was hit by a bomb during World War II, and has since been repaired.

The French government has announced that the cathedral will be open to the public on Christmas Day, and will be lit by a special service. The service will be broadcast on television, and will be attended by thousands of people.

Thousands of impoverished Serbs protest church property bill in Montenegro

The cathedral of St. Sava, located in the heart of Belgrade, has been the centre of controversy and conflict for decades. The church has been a symbol of Serbian nationalism, and has been used as a symbol of opposition to the government.

The government had originally planned to sell off the cathedral, which was built in the mid-19th century, to pay off a massive debt. However, this plan was met with widespread opposition, and in 2013 the government backed down.

Now, however, the government has announced that it plans to sell off the church, along with other church properties, to pay off its debts. The move has been met with widespread protests, and many people fear that the church will be sold to foreign investors.

The cathedral has a long and complicated history. It was built in the early 19th century, and was the largest church in the Ottoman Empire. It was later taken over by the Serbs, and was used as a symbol of their independence.

The church was heavily damaged during World War II, and has since been restored. However, many people fear that it will be sold off again in the future.
Citizenship law protests rage on; death toll at 21

PM Modi tells ministers: Focus on govt's pet projects; PM Modi tells ministers

Some states saw a significant rise in the number of people joining the protests, which also included students and workers. The protests began in the north and then spread to other parts of the country.

In New Delhi, the capital city, officials said that at least 11 people had been killed in the protests, including an 8-year-old boy. The death toll is expected to rise further in the coming days.

In other parts of the country, tensions had also increased. In Uttar Pradesh, the state government had deployed additional police personnel to prevent any large-scale protests.

In Tamil Nadu, the state government had imposed a curfew in several districts to prevent the spread of violence.

On Twitter, users expressed their concern and solidarity with the protesters. Many shared images and videos of the protests, calling for peace and understanding.

The government had also taken steps to prevent the spread of misinformation on social media. It had asked Twitter to remove any content that could incite violence or spread false information.

The protests had drawn international attention, with leaders from various countries expressing their concern.

A day after Prime Minister Narendra Modi's government took steps to scrap the centuries-old Citizenship Act, protest erupted in different parts of the country on Sunday. The police were seen using tear gas and batons against protesters. Several people were injured.

According to the government, the new citizenship law will provide citizenship to non-Muslim immigrants from Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Afghanistan. However, non-Muslim refugees from Afghanistan and Pakistan have been excluded from the law.

The Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) was introduced in the Lok Sabha on December 9, 2019, and passed with the support of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP). The law was opposed by a large number of people, who argued that it would lead to the dilution of India's multicultural identity.

The government had said that the law would help to provide citizenship to non-Muslim immigrants who have been living in India for a long time and have made India their home.

On Sunday, the government said that the law would not affect the rights of Muslims living in India. The government had also assured that the law would not lead to the division of the country on religious lines.

President Rodrigo Duterte has secured half of the vote tally in a recent police chief survey conducted by the Philippine National Police (PNP) despite his own lack of clarity on who he would be nominating as the next top cop.

Duterte explained his choice would be among the top three candidates, all of whom have been cleared by the NBI in their interviews.

The PNP’s National Police Board panel said it had received 13,832 valid ballots from police personnel in the country’s 75,000 or so police stations.

By the vote count, Dr. John F. Ypection, a retired PNP-Administrative Head, got the most number of votes, that is 4,324, or 31.35 percent.

Duterte was the second top candidate, with 3,397 votes or 24.76 percent. The third position was occupied by the Philippines’ special antiterrorism task force chief, Graveyio Robalo.

Qatar budget focus on spending to stimulate economic growth

Qatar’s budget for fiscal 2020, which was presented recently, has laid strong emphasis on supporting development projects that facilitate the country’s economic growth and diversification.

Law No 20 of 2019 issued by His Highness the Amir Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani that approves the general budget for 2020, takes effect on January 1, 2020.

The budget shows receipts of QR211bn, unchanged from the 2019 budget, which was approved in June. A five-year high, it is slated to almost double year-on-year to QR210.5bn.

The budget estimates a surplus of QR90bn, which is based on a conservative oil price estimate of $55 a barrel. Infrastructure projects and other projects of strategic national importance and key sectors such as health and education have been given priority in this year’s budget.

This will have multiplicative effects on the economy with many sectors set to gain from higher expenditure. What this means is creation of many potential job opportunities for the nationals.

The budget places “significant importance” on providing funds for the development of housing areas for nationals, enhancing food security projects, and the establishment of new infrastructure and facilities in areas, special economic zones, and industrial and logistic zones.

These projects, according to the Ministry of Finance, will support economic growth and diversification.

“The 2020 budget is designed to achieve efficiency in the current expenditure while maintaining the allocations required for the completion of major projects and initiatives. This contributes to the sustainable development targets of the Qatar National Vision 2030, which focuses on economic, social, and environmental development,” Ministry of Finance stated.

Expenditure for major projects is budgeted at QR21bn, which is 6% higher than that in the previous budget. Most projects, which altogether account for 59% of total expenditure, represent the largest share of the overall budget.

It highlights the country’s commitment to fully complete the projects, including health facilities, education, and transportation, along with those related to the Qatargas Plant here in Qatar – the FIFA World Cup in 2022, as per the approved schedule.

There are a large number of planned initiatives for highway and internal roads development, expansions of the existing road systems, water and electricity networks, sewage networks, and other public utilities. Funds are also allocated to finance housing projects for nationals and landscape development. The housing plan will cost QR2bn over five years.

The main infrastructure projects under construction include the completion of highways including (subai Al Ahmad Corridor) expansions in the water and electricity networks; integrated infrastructure in existing urban areas and developments in the sewage networks in different regions of the country.

The allocation for the healthcare sector is QR21bn, representing around 11% of the total expenditures while education has been allocated QR31bn in the 2020 budget, representing 10.5% of total expenditure.

The budget focus on development is a clear attestation of the Ministry of Finance, will represent the largest share of the overall budget in 2020. Major projects represent the largest share of the overall budget.

That is why the EU will continue to engage positively with the UK, both bilaterally and in the form of joint initiatives with the Union, the European Commission, and the G20. Created climate change. Next year, the UN Climate Change Conference (COP25) will take place in Madrid, and finalising meeting targets will require a strong common position. If the EU and the UK do not have a common agreement, in those areas, there is little hope that others around the world will be able to do so.

Second, we need to build a close security relationship. Since, too, the EU’s departure from the EU has consequences. The strong security partnership that the EU and the UK have built up in the past is linked to the free movement of people, it would be where we have common rules, common supervision mechanisms, and a common Court of Justice. Because we fight each other and we are assured that our fundamental rights are protected, we are able to share data securely and effectively.

The same degree of co-operation is simply not possible with a third country that is outside of the Schengen Area. Yet neither the EU nor the UK guarantees its security without looking beyond its borders, including alliances, which is why we have a common territory and other attempts to undermine our democracies will require a joint effort. The future of our citizens depend on our ability to co-operate on such a front. That is why there can be no trade-off on our national security. This should be an unconditional commitment from both sides. This shows that the EU’s right to determine its own foreign and security policy, Josep Borrell, agrees.

Third, by this time next year, we need an economic partnership that reflects our common interests, geographical proximity, and interdependences. In the ‘political declaration’ agreed in October last year, the UK government made clear that it would aim to pursue a trade agreement with the EU, and rejected the draft EU text that would remain in the EU customs union. That means the UK and the EU will become two separate customs areas.

The EU – including its trade commissioner, Phil Hogan – will engage in negotiations in a positive spirit, with the willingness to make the most of the short time available. But, like the UK, we will keep our strategic interests – including our security and environmental standards – rather than on skills, innovation, and quality – had only to see the horizon that other powers,agreements, and assets on the whole side. Thus, any free-trade agreement must provide for a closed playing field on standards, infra, and services.
Elizabeth Warren’s bold ideas don’t go far enough

The error was not Europe’s, but Britain’s. “They did not see what they wanted to see,” the EU’s Odense, who wasn’t involved in the study, said by e-mail. “They saw this as a strategy to evade taxes and avoid the social protection that is now vital for our future.”
