Qatar stops Bahraini cruiser in Qatari territorial waters

The Coasts and Borders Security Department in Doha intercepted a Bahraini cruiser, Al Biqa, coming from the Fasht al-Dibel area, off the coast of Qatar, and stopped it for violating the territorial waters of Qatar. The violation was committed by the 3 sailors on board, one of whom was transferred to the Doha Police Department to complete the legal procedures against him. The violation was reported by a local who had just witnessed the incident. The department is still continuing to follow up on the case.

French law triggers more protests

Thousands of protesters took to the streets in France yesterday, as the third consecutive week of demonstrations over a controversial law, known as the ‘global security law’, continues. The demonstrations have been ongoing since the beginning of the month. The authorities had been bracing for further violence, as the last two such protests in Paris ended in violence. But there were no major flare-ups as a series of thousands of protesters marched in support of the law, an anti-terrorism measure that was passed by the National Assembly.

UK navy to protect fishing rights

Four Royal Navy patrol ships are on standby in the North Sea and waters off the coast of France. The navy is on alert after trawlers from the UK arrived and were met by French authorities. The UK has been given an ultimatum to return to UK waters or face legal action. The UK government has rejected the ultimatum, calling it a “mismatch”.

Qatar participated in the 13th Bali Democracy Forum, which was held in Doha, Qatar. "Democracy and the Covid-19 Pandemic" was the main theme of the meeting, which was aimed at highlighting the importance of democracy and the role of states in managing the pandemic, as well as the need for international cooperation to tackle the crisis.

His Highness the Amir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad al-Thani announced the date for the forthcoming election for the Shura Council, which will be held in Oct 2021. The Amir also announced the date for the upcoming election for the State Assembly, set to take place in June 2022.

The state was represented at the meeting by HE the Minister of Foreign Affairs, HE Sheikh Mohammed bin Abdulrahman al-Thani, who emphasized the importance of international cooperation in addressing the pandemic, as well as the need for strong leadership and decisive action by states. He also highlighted Qatar's efforts in supporting international organizations and initiatives, such as the World Health Organization and the United Nations, in their fight against the pandemic.

The conference also shed light on the current international context, which is marked by the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic and its repercussions. The Amir stressed the importance of maintaining the principles of democracy and the rule of law, as well as the need for increased cooperation and solidarity among states to overcome the challenges posed by the pandemic.

The meeting was attended by representatives from more than 80 countries, including heads of state and government, as well as high-level officials from international organizations and civil society groups. The discussions covered a wide range of topics related to democracy, human rights, and international cooperation, with a particular emphasis on the role of states in managing the pandemic and promoting democratic values.

Qatar also took part in the 25th Arab Museum of Modern Art, which was held in Doha, Qatar. The museum, which is one of the largest of its kind in the region, was established in 1972 with the aim of promoting contemporary art and culture. The museum's collection includes works by some of the most prominent artists from the region and around the world, as well as multimedia installations and interactive exhibits.

The museum's director, HE Sultan bin Saad al-Muraikhi, highlighted the importance of museums in providing the necessary tools for the development and promotion of contemporary art and culture. He also emphasized the role of museums in educating the public and fostering a culture of dialogue and understanding between different cultures and civilizations.

The conference also included a discussion on the role of museums in addressing the challenges posed by the pandemic, such as the need for increased digitization and online access to cultural resources. The director of the museum noted that the museum had to adapt to the new circumstances and develop new strategies to reach its audience, such as through online exhibitions and educational programs.

The conference also addressed the importance of international cooperation and collaboration in the field of cultural heritage and art. The director of the museum underscored the need for increased collaboration between museums and cultural institutions in the region and around the world, as well as the need for greater support and funding for the cultural sector.

In his address to the meeting, HE al-Muraikhi said that Qatar has been one of the few countries in the world that has been able to limit the negative effects of the pandemic, as a result of the ongoing concerted efforts at all levels, including the medical personnel. He also referred to the appeal of the World Health Organization (WHO) and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) to vaccinate children under five years of age in poor regions of the world. He noted that Qatar has made significant contributions to the global vaccine campaign, as a result of its strong commitment to the pursuit of peace and development in the region and around the world.

The conference also addressed the need for increased cooperation and coordination at all levels, including the bilateral and multilateral levels, to address the challenges posed by the pandemic. The director of the museum underscored the need for increased collaboration between museums and cultural institutions in the region and around the world, as well as the need for greater support and funding for the cultural sector.

Event held to mark Beethoven’s 250th birth anniversary

The Qatari Publishers and Distributors Forum, established during the Covid-19 quarantine, has announced the launch of its website.

The event was held with a limited audience due to the pandemic situation, according to the website.

The event included training workshops focusing on innovative methods to enhance online teaching.

The event covered topics as diverse as a revised learner-centered approach, sustainability in distance learning, how to increase online student engagement, and individual vs institutional needs.

The event took place from December 7-9.

One of the sessions at the “2nd Virtual Academic Excellence Week” was held to mark the 250th birth anniversary of Beethoven, the legendary German composer, through a virtual operation with Unesco.

Several speakers from internationally-recognized institutions in Qatar, the US, Australia, Thailand, and Hong Kong presented mainly on the subject matter of teaching English.

Nigerian military in firefights with gang who kidnapped students

The Nigerian military has reported that a firefight with a gang who kidnapped students in Katsina has ended with one officer killed and several others injured. According to the statement from the president's spokesman, Gambo Isah, the military had been scouting the area for signs of the gang since they had set up an improvised camp outside the school. The operation, which involved the deployment of additional forces to support the local police, ended after a fierce exchange of gunfire. The military said they were still working to determine how many attackers had been killed or captured.

French law on filming police triggers third weekend of protests

Tens of thousands of people took to the streets across France on Sunday for a third consecutive weekend of demonstrations against a controversial security bill that would limit filming of the police force.

The bill, which would give French authorities more power to restrict filming and the use of social media by journalists and the public, has sparked widespread protests across the country.

The French government has been under pressure to relax some of the bill’s most controversial provisions, but the marches continued over the weekend.

“Police reform is an attack on freedom,” said one protester in Paris. “We will not accept any attempts to restrict our rights.”

The protests have become a symbol of a wider movement of civil liberties organizations and ordinary citizens who are concerned about the erosion of privacy and freedom of expression.

Interior Minister Gerald Darmanin tweeted that the protests have not impacted public order, despite some clashes with police.

As a candidate the previous two years and recently as president-elect, Joe Biden has been unitarily criticized by some in the conservative media as being the champion of the capitalists vs socialism economic debate. Unfortunately for that pandering to undecided Biden’s message. He does not want to adopt socialist economic policies, but neither does he want to be seen as the champion of the capitalists vs socialism economic debate. The hard work of governance is running the government, when its underlying political system is based on the rule of law and a functioning democracy.

One case in point. “It used to be that corporate America had a sense of fearlessness, but it’s no longer. Business is no longer lead by my intuition or my gut reactions. Business these days is led by their metrics. And I think that’s why business today has not stepped up. If you want to take on a moment when their policy is based on the rule of law and a functioning democracy. And I think that’s why business today has not stepped up. If you want to take on a moment when it’s more of the oligarchy, or the plutocracy, than it is business.”

He added that the National Day now serves as an opportunity to seek the spirit of the people and their desires, build a stronger and more sustainable society that continues its path of progress towards sustainable development. He also helped outline on its journey, which can only be possible for giving the people the means to the key driver of our lives, with the participation of the government, civil society, and the private sector. He concluded his statement by expressing his hope that the National Day will continue to contribute to the development and stability of Qatar.

The prime minister mentioned that the National Day is an important occasion that shows the people of Qatar’s history and culture. It also highlights the leadership’s commitment to sharing the values of the Qatar state, the appreciation of Qatar’s history, and the commitment to ensuring that Qatar’s future will be bright.

By 2030, we will have 60% clean energy: PM Khan

Discussing the current climate crisis concern, the government has decided to produce energy along with wind or coal so that coal doesn’t have to be imported,” Prime Minister Imran Khan said.

Khan, who is leading the country in the 2021 elections, has been a strong advocate of renewable energy and has expressed his commitment to reducing Pakistan's carbon footprint.

The Prime Minister also emphasized the importance of education, stating that it was the key to sustainable development and reducing poverty. He also highlighted the need for collaboration between governments, businesses, and civil society to achieve these goals.

The Pakistan government has already taken several steps towards achieving its climate goals, including setting renewable energy targets and investing in clean energy technologies.

By 2030, the government aims to achieve 60% clean energy production, which would significantly reduce the country's reliance on fossil fuels.

The Prime Minister has also called for international cooperation, stating that addressing climate change requires a global effort.

In conclusion, Prime Minister Imran Khan reiterated his commitment to achieving Pakistan's climate goals and urged the international community to support the country in its efforts to combat climate change.
