Ooredoo has now achieved a milestone of 500,000 mobile postpaid customers.

The latest figures show that Ooredoo's 5G and 4G networks are fully deployed in all areas across Qatar and the cooperative's big expansion plan for the roll-out of next-generation mobile services has created 4,451 jobs for Qataris. Some 20,000 postpaid customers have already been switched to 5G plans, with many more customers expected to adopt the new technology by the year-end.

Ooredoo customers signing up for a new 5G plan can take advantage of a choice of entertainment and lifestyle benefits: free access to premium football on both CNN+ and beIN Sports, free online movies and shows on iQooNow, and two-for-one offers across Qatar and the region with Urban Point.

Ooredoo’s latest partnership with 5G network provider Nokia and content provider Disney+ has been attributed to its agility and speed to respond to the need of the hour for customers to access the latest entertainment on the different platforms from any location.

“Now, more than ever, it’s even more important for us as a provider to listen and understand our customers,” said Nasir bin Ilyas, Ooredoo Qatar’s Business Development Director. “That is why we have launched Shahry 5G and Qatarna 5G plans that are tailored to suit our customers’ personal preferences. In addition, we have already signed up to a new 5G plan, with many more customers expected to adopt the full benefits of 5G in the coming months.”

On Friday accused “angry mobs” of using fire and profanity against National Guard troops deployed to the South Dakota landmark. Authorities have also spent time amid a tense protest, as the governor and other state officials, including his deputy, have been seen in various locations in the state.

The standoff comes amid a broader national debate over the role of federal law enforcement in the face of civil unrest, as some states have deployed National Guard troops to help quell demonstrations over police brutality.

In South Dakota, where the protest has been ongoing for days, authorities said they were responding to a “riot” situation and were using tear gas and other non-lethal tactics to disperse the crowd.

Protests have continued in other states, with demonstrations in Chicago, Los Angeles, and other cities, as people demand justice for George Floyd, an unarmed black man who died after being pinned down by a police officer in Minneapolis.

Floyd was in police custody when he died on May 25, and the death has sparked a wave of protests across the United States. The protests have been fueled by frustration over police brutality and systemic racism.

The protests have also highlighted the need for reform in policing, with calls for changes to police training and tactics, as well as for the abolition of police departments in some cities.

In South Dakota, the National Guard has been called in to help authorities enforce a curfew and keep the peace.

The protests have also raised questions about the role of federal law enforcement in dealing with civil unrest. Some have criticized the deployment of National Guard troops, saying it is an inappropriate use of military force.

China rebukes Canada over HK criticism

China has strongly condemned Canada for its recent attack on Hong Kong, saying it will not reduce the pressure on Canada to stop its pro-democracy activities.

China’s foreign ministry spokesman, Zhao Lijian, said in a video press conference on Saturday that the Canadian government’s statement was “false and hypocritical,” and that it was “totally irresponsible.”

Zhao said the statement was “pure lies and slanders” and “full of lies.”

Canada’s foreign ministry said on Friday that it had become “quite concerned” about the situation in Hong Kong and had repeated its call for the restoration of democracy in the city.

Zhao accused Canada of “bullying” and “interfering” in Hong Kong’s internal affairs, saying it was a “gross violation” of China’s national sovereignty.

Canada has repeatedly condemned China’s treatment of anti-government protesters in Hong Kong, and has called for an independent investigation into the violence.

“Canada has no right to interfere in Hong Kong’s internal affairs,” Zhao said.

Democracy books vanish from HK libraries

Thirty thousand books have been removed from Hong Kong libraries, including “tens of thousands” of titles from the US, according to local media.

The move comes amid growing concern about the erosion of freedom of expression in the city, which has been rocked by pro-democracy protests in recent years.

According to local media, the books were removed from public libraries in a single day, and the government said it was due to a “misunderstanding”.

However, local democracy activists have expressed concern that the move is part of a broader crackdown on free speech in Hong Kong.

The books include titles on democracy, human rights, and political history.

The move comes amid growing tensions between the US and China over territorial disputes in the South China Sea.

The two carriers are reportedly conducting a joint search and rescue exercise in the area.

Australia locks down high-rise apartments as virus cases spike

Australia has locked down high-rise apartments in Melbourne’s CBD after a spike in COVID-19 cases in the city.

Prime Minister Scott Morrison announced on Friday that the lockdown would apply to the entire city’s CBD, including the city’s central business district.

The move comes after a series of COVID-19 outbreaks in Melbourne, with at least two clusters linked to the city’s hospitality sector.

Morrison said the lockdown was necessary to “halt the spread of the virus” and prevent further outbreaks.

The lockdown will affect about 100,000 people in the Melbourne CBD, and will come into effect on Saturday.

North Korea says no need for talks with US

North Korea has said there is no need for talks with the US, despite pressure from international community.

North Korea has repeatedly said it would not hold any talks with the US until the US withdraws its nuclear weapons from the Korean Peninsula.

However, US President Joe Biden has said he is open to dialogue with North Korea, and has said he is willing to meet with Kim Jong-un.

North Korea has called the US “hostile forces” and a “saboteur” of the Korean Peninsula’s peace process.

Greece extends migrant camp curbs

Greece has announced that all remaining coronavirus lockdowns in migrant camps will be lifted as of July 15, despite allegations that it has used vaccines to secure agreement with migration of migrants.

The government had set a deadline of March 21 and it is now extended until new elections in August.

Migrants are allowed to leave the camps but are not allowed to return in groups of more than 10 and must present a negative RT-PCR test, if so.

New FBR chairman appointed

The Pakistan Standards and Quality Control Authority (PSQCA) has suspended the licence of public television channel 24NewsHD for “illegal programming content” in an episode of Geo Entertainment’s daily show “Kamran Gharibzada Show”.

According to a press release issued by the regulatory body, the channel was granted the licence to air entertainment content instead but it was “pre-emptively digitally and nationally broadcast a programme, which is full of errors and continuous violations of the broadcasting code”.

The regulatory body said it is following the Anwar Broadcasting Act for the channel to violate its licence and ordered it to “revert back to its approved programming content” in its next episode.

Meanwhile, the FBR has released a list of 45 officials, mandating them to perform their duties at home. The list includes special assistant of the FBR’s head office, the assistant commissioner of the National Taxation Service, and the assistant commissioner of the FBR’s head office.

The FBR has also announced that it has approved the appointment of Amjad Ali Khan as the new FBR chairman. Amjad Ali Khan will take charge of the FBR as of October 12.

The FBR’s performance was not encouraging during fiscal year 2018-19, as the tax authority posted growth of 4.8% in the first time in the past half century. The FBR’s performance in the current fiscal year has also received a setback due to the impact of the coronavirus lockdowns, and it is estimated that the FBR’s tax collection may slip in the second half of the current fiscal year.

Qatar has made an exceptional achievement by maintaining the lowest of COVID-19 deaths in the world, besides regaining a full number in the hospital admissions and a decrease in the number of cases reported daily.

Under the directives of His Highness the Amir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani, all ministries, health and academic institutions and other organizations in our country particularly the collective efforts of all citizens mitigate the pandemic. Qatar has started lifting the pandemic-related restrictions gradually and with great caution, in order to control the spread of the virus while keeping precautionary measures in place. This, as Sheikh Dr Mohamed bin Hamad Al Thani, Director, Department of Public Health at the Ministry of Public Health (MPH), emphasized recently, requires everyone’s commitment to precautionary measures so that we can continue to control Covid-19 and return to normal life in the coming months.

The pandemic has placed a unique set of challenges for all of us. We are still learning more and more about coronavirus every day, and health experts continue to warn that you don’t actually have to be sick to contract the virus. A person infected with the virus can be contagious as early as three days before he or she begins showing symptoms. In addition, some people show no symptoms, and others still able to spread the virus.

This means that, even if you “feel fine,” you can still inadvertently spread the virus if you’re infected and don’t yet show symptoms. This is why health experts continue to warn that you don’t actually have to be sick to contract the virus.

The pandemic has placed a new level of personal accountability on each one of us. To slow the spread of coronavirus and protect the health and vitality of our people, we must remain committed to the extra precautions our health officials are recommending. At the core of these precautionary measures is the need for continued social distancing and take all of the precautions seriously — even if one is healthy.

Qatar has already announced a comprehensive master plan to save businesses through four phases (from June 15 to the fourth on September 1) while taking all the necessary precautions required.

The Spokesperson of the Supreme Committee for Crisis Management, Loalibn bint Rashid AlKhater, has made it clear that the implementation of the plan is not only with the Ministry of Public Health or the government and private sectors, but also with all members of the society — young and old, man and woman.

Hence, it is our collective responsibility to support and actively participate in efforts to fight the pandemic, head the advice of our health experts, and help bring the situation under control.

We should not throw caution to the winds and ignore both how this virus spreads and how contagious it is. At the end of the day, the new coronavirus is still around us — and it is the responsibility of each one of us to protect ourselves and the society from Covid-19, which is severe enough to affect someone’s life forever.

The pandemic class war

Waze for viruses

Antibodies stay in our blood even after we recover from infection. That is important news: it means that if we develop effective vaccines, we can protect ourselves and our loved ones against the virus. But what about the need for effective treatments? We know that in countries with limited resources, patients diagnosis and treatment can take too long. It is crucial that we find a way to speed up the process.

What doctors have learned about fighting Covid-19

What doctors have learned about fighting Covid-19 is that it is not just a respiratory virus. It can affect many other organs, including the heart, brain, and kidneys. It can also cause an inflammatory storm that can lead to multi-organ failure.

The class war

The class war is not just about politics. It is also about how our society is structured. In times of crisis, the wealthy tend to fare better than the poor. For example, if there is a shortage of medical supplies, the wealthy may be able to buy them cheaper than the poor. This can lead to intense conflict and social unrest.

The role of technology

The pandemic has highlighted the role of technology in our lives. From telemedicine to online shopping, technology has been a lifeline for many people. However, it has also exposed the digital divide, with many people in low-income countries unable to access the internet.

The role of data

Data is crucial in fighting the pandemic. From contact tracing to vaccine distribution, data is used to make decisions. However, data privacy is also important. We need to balance the need for data with the protection of individual privacy.

The role of government

Governments play a crucial role in fighting the pandemic. They need to coordinate with each other to ensure that resources are shared effectively. They also need to ensure that the rules are followed and that people are aware of the importance of social distancing.

The role of civil society

Civil society organizations play a crucial role in fighting the pandemic. They provide support to vulnerable communities and help to distribute resources.

The role of international organizations

International organizations, such as the World Health Organization, play a crucial role in fighting the pandemic. They provide guidance and support to countries around the world.

The role of the media

The media play a crucial role in fighting the pandemic. They provide information to the public and help to shape public opinion.

The role of the individual

The individual also plays a crucial role in fighting the pandemic. We need to make sure that we follow the rules, wear masks, and practice social distancing.
